Foreword

The Ministry of General Education and Instruction has noted that, Education is a fundamental human rights and it is key to sustainable development, peace and stability within and among the countries. The Ministry also believed that delivering education of high quality to all children, youth and adult in South Sudan is not only a must but an urgent demand that is needed now not later. Hence handling this immense task unilaterally is not the best option for this young nation.

This coordination document is developed within this context and with respect to the international obligation which asserted that ‘no countries seriously committed to education for all will be thwarted in their achievement of this goal by a lack of resources’ (Dakar framework of Action 2000). The reasons behind are to make the Ministry and Development Partners alike more transparent and accountable by collectively developing all education policies and strategies in a participatory manner and at the same time by persuading all developing partners in education not only to support the implementation of the strategic sector plan but also to monitor its implementation collectively.

This is another milestone that all partners in education have wholeheartedly come together and used their diverse skills and competences to develop this document referred to as General Education Coordinating Framework for the Ministry. All stakeholders in education must know that the aim of this framework is solely to further improve and strengthen our collaboration not only in the areas of support to policy and strategy development but to focus more on the implementation and monitoring outputs/outcomes.

I also recognized that a lot of work and time has been invested on the preparation of this document and it is therefore my hope to see that it becomes a viable instrument guiding us on our paths to deliver the desired education to ‘our future leaders’ the children of this young nation. As a result, I would like to recognize the contribution of our major flagships Partners such as UNICEF/GPE, GESS secretariat, National Education Coalition (NEC) and the clusters to mention but few. Special thanks also goes to Undersecretary and His team more particularly the Directorate of Planning and Budgeting. Your challenge is now how to use the document and it use meticulously and wishing you and our children bright and prosperous future for all.

Thank you

Hon. Deng Deng Hoc Yai

Minister for General Education and Instructions

Government of the Republic of South Sudan
INTRODUCTION

The development of the education sector delivery system in South Sudan involves a diverse range of stakeholders including government, faith-based institutions, private sector, National non-governmental organisations, community–based organisations, international non-governmental organisations, and international development agencies. In the past the approach to development of the sector had been ad hoc, with pockets of projects driven by donors or partners. However, with the advent of flagship programs such as GESS, GPE, EU IMPACT etc., education partners and the Ministry saw it fit to streamline education activities in the country along the education sector plan. The General Education sub-sector has thus seen significant strides towards better coordination in the more recent years.

This manual is put together to revitalize collaboration and co-ordination between development partners and the Ministry of General Education and Instruction with the ultimate goal of achieving effective and efficient delivery of equitable, accessible and quality education to all in South Sudan.

The manual has been developed by the Ministry of General Education and Instruction in collaboration with education partners to provide guidance to all stakeholders/partners on current and future support to the General Education sub-sector. The key guiding document is the General Education Strategic Plan (GESP). It is intended that all partners’ support and activities should be aligned to key policies and strategies of the sector plan and the annual plans and budgets derived from the plan (GESP).

Apart from defining the various roles and functions of the various co-ordination bodies, including National, State and County Levels, this manual proposes two major annual events involving both National and State Ministries:

i. A Planning and Budgeting Pre-view: This will examine plans, budget allocations and priorities for each coming fiscal year.

ii. General Education Annual Review (GEAR): This will review the General Education sector performance, budget execution and key policy issues once a year, and set out key priorities for the next financial year.

CONCLUSION
A more effective coordination of the General Education sector would see the sector achieve its mission and goals, ensuring provision of equitable access to quality lifelong learning opportunities for all people of South Sudan.

As the various arms of the co-ordination structure move into action, it is anticipated that there may be need to adapt the manual to better fit scenarios that may not have been exhaustively covered. This shall be achieved through annual reviews (which would best be carried out during the General Education Annual Review).

All stakeholders within the General Education sub-sector are called upon to embrace and rally for optimum coordination within the sector, which shall ensure efficient and effective use of resources available to the sector, hence better outcomes with each passing academic year.
